

Boeing Aerostructures Australia Environment Health & Safety Policy

Boeing Aerostructures Australia specialises in the design, manufacture and testing of aerostructure components. We embrace the four Safety Guiding Principles of the Boeing Go for Zero – One Day at a Time program and are committed to lead the aerospace industry into an environmentally progressive and sustainable future.

We shall strive for excellence in these areas in a manner that supports our vision and expectations of employees, customers, contractors and shareholders.

We will:

- Establish, implement and maintain management systems for environment, health and safety that are consistent with internationally recognised standards.
- Demonstrate Leadership and continuous improvement through promotion of a positive environment health and safety culture.
- Identify and manage environment health and safety risks to employees, contractors, visitors and the environment.
- Conduct operations in compliance with applicable legislation, regulatory directives and other relevant requirements to which Boeing subscribes.
- Foster a commitment to environment health and safety principles through consultative processes.
- Set and achieve targets that provide a safer working environment for employees, contractors and visitors and improve our environmental footprint.
- Recognise innovative solutions that eliminate unsafe environmental, health and safety conditions and behaviour to reduce our impact to the environment, prevent injury, illness and pollution.
- Integrate environment, health, safety, quality, risk and compliance principles as part of normal business operations.
- Competently train and educate our employees and contractors.

April 2020

Jose Garza
Managing Director

Michael Sorrenson
Director Supply Chain Management & Operations

Adnan Raghdo
Director Engineering

Bronwyn Di Carlo
GM Finance & Business Operations

Kelly Knowles
GM Human Resources

Matthew Jones
Senior Manager Quality

Bjorn Reijnen
Manager EHS

Aerostructures Australia

Boeing Aerostructures Australia places the protection of human health and the environment as its highest priority